A TRIP TO THE ADA PUBLIC LIBRARY

By Monty Siekerman

It used to be libraries were book depositories, borrow a book and return it.

They were places to read the latest magazines and newspapers, as well. Not anymore.

Libraries continue those services, but have added programming, many events for children from 0-5 on up to crocheting and quilting.

So, here's a look at a few of the many activities at the Ada Public Library in 2017. The library celebrated its centennial, welcomed a new director, and began a major addition and renovation in the year that now closes. Are you, your friends or family pictured here.

Photo on the cover: New library director Rhett Grant and his wife Jenny welcoming Halloweeners, not in their usual day-to-day garb.
